Let's Start!

Every country has its own customs.

Learning Outcome

Explain customs and appropriate behaviour at work and in different countries, using a wider range of expressions and formulas.

Ask your partner:

- Which customs do you like from your country? Which ones would you like to change?
- Which customs from other countries would you like to have as your own?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about manners and customs.
- I can talk about things that I'm supposed to do and things that are supposed to happen.
- I can explain my opinion.

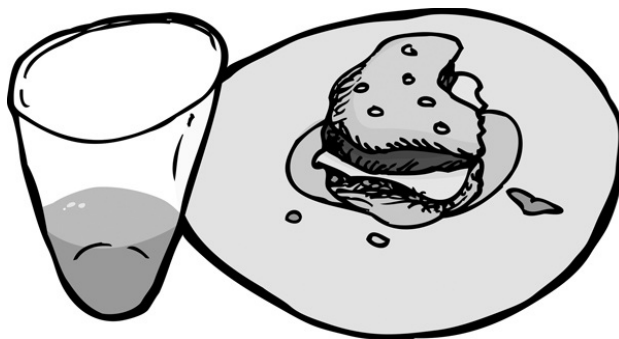

Let's Explore!

Jose explains the biggest faux-pas you could make if you eat in Colombia.

* A "faux-pas" is a French expression you use when you talk about a mistake or misstep.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Jose: Good evening, Miss. Welcome to Bistro 88. Would you like to hear our specials?
- Jessica: Sure. I'm really hungry!
- Jose: Tonight we have an amazing salad with seasonal vegetables and goat cheese, and a shepherd's pie. In my opinion, it is to die for.
- Jessica: Hmm ... Shepherd's pie. I have not eaten that in a while.
- Jose: You won't regret it, trust me.
- Jessica: OK then. Can I ask you a question? I noticed you have a South American accent. If you don't mind me asking, where are you from?
- Jose: I don't mind at all. I am a Colombian.
- Jessica: No way!
- Jose: What do you mean?
- Jessica: Oh, you say that when you're very surprised. I suppose some expressions are lost in translation.
- Jose: I see. I should learn more phrases like these!
- Jessica: I'm supposed to spend a year there with an exchange program.
- Jose: You'll love it there.
- Jessica: I heard that you shouldn't leave any food uneaten if you're invited to someone's house. Is that true?
- Jose: Yes. We try to be accommodating to foreigners, but our elders feel uncomfortable about it.
- Jessica: I'll remember that, thanks. I'm supposed to live with a family in Bogota. I'll try not to upset them too much!
- Jose: You'll be OK. Many Colombians would rather defuse the situation when an argument arises. We like to focus our public displays of emotions on something positive, like dancing.
- Jessica: Oh! I can't wait for that ...

Let's Practice!

Jose and Jessica discuss differences in customs.

Instructions: Draw a line to match the sentences in Column A and Column B. Use the sentences to model a conversation with your partner. Switch roles.

COLUMN A

1. You say that
2. I heard that you shouldn't
3. Many Colombians would rather
4. We like to focus our public displays of emotions
5. I notice the people

COLUMN B

- a. defuse the situation when an argument arises.
- b. leave any food uneaten. Is that true?
- c. in Boston love sports.
- d. on something positive, like dancing.
- e. when you're very surprised.

Let's Practice!

Jessica should learn more about Colombia.

Instructions: Organize the mystery sentence. Put each word in the correct order. Practice saying the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Extension Activity

Talk about your favorite foods.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Brainstorm some popular local dishes from your country.
- Say which one is your favorite and explain why to a partner.
- What food would you recommend to someone visiting your country?
- Talk about your favorite foreign food. What is your favorite dish from another country?
- Explain your opinion.
- Research how to cook it on the internet.
- Present your dish to the class.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I talk about dishes I like to eat.

☐ ☐

I explain why I enjoy the dishes.

I research a dish from a different country.

Target Words

- uncomfortable (adjective): feeling unease about something e.g. People feel uncomfortable when you leave food on your plate.
- uneaten (adjective): food that is left on a plate
e.g. You shouldn't leave any food uneaten if you're invited to someone's house.
- elder (noun): a person of a greater age e.g. Our elders feel uncomfortable when they see food uneaten on a plate.
- accommodating (adjective): to do something nice for someone, a favor e.g. We always try to be accommodating to our guests.
- lost in translation (expression): when the original meaning cannot be perfectly translated into the other language e.g. My Japanese house guest didn't understand that expression. Some things are just lost in translation.
- display (noun): a show of feelings for everyone to see e.g. We like to focus our public displays of emotions on something positive, like dancing.
- to defuse (verb): to make a dangerous situation safer
e.g. The two men's argument was beginning to get serious, but Julie defused the situation with a joke.

Learning Points

The Position of Not

In English, the adverb not usually goes after the auxiliary verb or “be” to form the negative.

You can use the adverb not in other positions in some cases.

Usually, we find the adverb not in conjunction with an auxiliary verb or “be” in a negative sentence.

Example:

If you do not mind me asking, where are you from?

You will not regret it, trust me.

You shouldn't leave any food uneaten = You should not leave any food uneaten.

When you use the long form instead of the contraction, you emphasize the negation of the verb.

You also find not before a verb in the Infinitive.

Example:

I'll try not to upset them too much!

Examples:

- I have not eaten that in a while

Learning Points

Should and Be Supposed To

You use the modal should or the structure be supposed to when you want to talk about expectations, obligations or arrangements.

You can use be supposed to to talk about situations in the present or future that are expected to happen.

The structure is:

Subject + To be + supposed to + verb

Sharing information with their new colleagues is something they're supposed to do .

*Pronunciation tip:

When you say be supposed to, you link the /d/ and /t/ sounds together.

Like this:

Be suppose_to

Examples:

- I'm supposed to spend a year there for an exchange program.
- I heard that you shouldn't leave any food uneaten if you're invited to someone's house.
