Let's Start!

Moving to another country is not always easy at first.

Learning Outcome

Exchange information about people's interests and backgrounds using a wider range of language.

Ask your partner:

- Have you ever been abroad? Do you know someone who had an experience abroad?
- What did you or they miss from home? Why?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about rules and regulations.
- I can talk about things that I'm supposed to do and things that are supposed to happen.
- I can talk about my attitudes toward an action.

Let's Explore!

Vanessa explains the intricacies of tipping in the USA to Jose.

* "Intricacy" means something complicated and difficult to fully understand.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Hello, Jose. Did you have a good weekend?
- Jose: Yes, Miss Wright. Settling in is easier than I thought.
- Vanessa: Call me Vanessa. Addressing people by their first name at work is fine, unless you need to talk to our chef.
- Jose: I know. I should always show respect to the chef in the kitchen! It's the same in Colombia.
- Vanessa: I'm sure that many things are similar. For example, customers aren't supposed to smoke in the restaurant.
- Jose: We banned smoking in public spaces in 2008 as well. How about legal drinking age?
- Vanessa: We are not supposed to serve alcohol to anyone under 21. The most important thing is making sure that customers don't break the law.
- Jose: What can I do to verify their age?
- Vanessa: You are supposed to card anyone who looks below age. As a rule of thumb, you should card anyone who looks below 30.
- Jose: Very well. Are customers supposed to leave a tip? It is not common in Colombia.
- Vanessa: It is strongly encouraged to leave tips, yes. Tipping is the usual practice in the US. Serving tables of 6 guests or more should give you higher gratuities, too.
- Jose: So, should I expect to get smaller tips from single customers?
- Vanessa: Not necessarily! You should always make them feel like you're giving them a good bang for their buck.
- Jose: Sorry?
- Vanessa: It means value for money.
- Jose: Great! I love learning new English expressions.

Learning Points

Verb + -ing and to + verb

A gerund is a noun made from a verb by adding "-ing." You can use a gerund as the subject, the complement, or the object of a sentence.

The infinitive is the base form of a verb - "to + verb".

A gerund is an action verb that is acting as a noun. The noun refers to an activity instead of a person or thing. Gerunds are written in their -ing form. You can use a gerund as the subject, the complement, or the object of a sentence.

Examples:

Subject of sentence:

Settling in is easier than I thought.

Complement of sentence:

The most important thing is making sure that customers don't break the law.

Object of sentence:

We banned smoking in public spaces in 2008 as well.

An infinitive is a verb form that acts as other parts of speech in a sentence. It is formed with to + base form of the verb.

Example: to talk, to enjoy, to play

You cannot add s , es , ed , or ing to the end. It is not a verb.

Example:

It is strongly encouraged to leave tips, yes.

So, should I expect to get smaller tips from single customers?

Learning Points

Should and Be Supposed To

You use the modal should or the structure be supposed to when you want to talk about expectations, obligations or arrangements.

You can use be supposed to to talk about situations in the present or future that are expected to happen.

The structure is:

Subject + To be + supposed to + verb

You are supposed to card anyone who looks below age.

*Pronunciation tip:

When you say be supposed to, you link the /d/ and /t/ sounds together.

Like this:

Be suppose_to

Examples:

- Ann: Are customers supposed to leave a tip? It is not common in Colombia.
- Bob: You should always make them feel like you're giving them a good bang for their buck.
